3-DAY PERFORMANCE TEST OBSERVATIONS: This is a complete stallion, and he should contribute prominence to his very small, multi-direction Westfalen damline. Good stallion type that is well-developed. Nice front with a lot of expression. His topline is a little weak but more than sufficient. All four legs have a good stance. Croup is a little sloping and short. Walk and trot are good, with a good length of stride and balance. Canter is powerful with a long stride and very good balance, suppleness, and self-carrying. Rideability is exceptionally good: He is very cooperative and attuned to his rider, and offers no resistance. Jumping traits are all good, with very consistent use of his body while jumping. Takeoff is good; front-leg technique is very good; hind-leg technique is also good. He has a lot of scope and jumps willingly, carefully, and effortlessly. The stallion possesses a lot of potential for both sport and showjumping and eventing breeding. He should be suitable for a wide variety of showjumping mares, and should bring athleticism, a very good canter, and modern jumping traits. For eventing breeding, it would be very interesting to use him with Thoroughbred and true half-bred mares requiring riding horse qualities and able to contribute the gallop and stamina for the cross-country. He also offers the potential for excellent rideability, character, temperament, and willingness to work in his progeny.

*Interior: character/temperament + willingness to work, equally weighted
